Bio:

Ian Flanigan "inspires a nostalgic sentiment akin to wistful escapism... emotional without being weepy, vulnerable without being pitiful, and conceptual while still remaining relatable" (Gallagher, SUNY editorial). Flanigan's sound—an eclectic blend of progressive folk and percussive finger style—is reminiscent of the road less traveled, paved with poignant lyrical truths of his past. Local to upstate New York, Flanigan's songwriting features husky vocals and evocative lyrics that highlight the rural landscapes of his compositions. Each song serenades the unity of life and an affinity for atonement—a sound that's provocative, and familiar. Ian is a celebrated Kerrville Grassy Hill New Folk Festival finalist, and Emerging Falcon Ridge Folk festival Artist. Flanigan has had the pleasure of sharing stages with Corey Glover, Sean Rowe, The Pedrito Martinez Group, Session Americana, Chris Knight, and Dwight Yoakam.

Quotes:

"Ian Flanigan's new album is an acoustic adventure into romantic reminiscence, a tuneful tribute to the adrift and their yearning to find the way back home and fall bodily into the outstretched arms of a long-missed lover. Be the listener seeking audio solace or just the pleasant ambiance of melodic confluence, Shades of Blue will provide either, or, and more, destined to become the fallback track of any low-key afternoon." -Lourena Ann -Gallagher II, SUNY editorial

"Delicious String Arrangement, cozy atmosphere..." -Indie Music Dimension Blog

"(Willow) ...a pretty song of soft acoustics and a voice that has experience in its side, so much so that you hang on every word. The tune is well crafted and boasts such an unhuried feel it almost feels like it is unfolding before your ears for the first time. Find an oak tree to rest your weary head." -MP3Hugger Music Blog

House Concert Reviews:

"Being a fan of his music, I hired Ian for a surprise Birthday party recently. What a great choice of entertainment! Not only was his music fantastic, but he proved to be a gracious performer as well, interacting with guests and taking the time to be a part of pictures, etc. He made every effort to ensure the evening was special for everyone in attendance.

It was a genuine pleasure to work with Ian and his booking agent, Ayla. Communication leading up to and including the day of the event was clear and concise and I felt completely confident that I was dealing with experienced professionals. I'm looking forward to working with both of them again, in the near future!

If you are considering hiring Ian, I would not hesitate. He will not disappoint!"
-Jeff Smith

"We recently hosted our first house concert. We were fortunate enough to have Ian Flanigan perform. The audience was captivated by his amazing voice and unbelievable talent. It was a very enchanting evening and our home is still resonating with the sounds of his beautiful music. Ayla was super easy to coordinate with and ensured that every detail was discussed prior to the event. We highly recommend Ian and Nightcap Entertainment."
